

A bright yellow, bulbous ceramic vase with a narrow neck, filled with several stems of baby's breath (Gypsophila) flowers. The flowers are small, white, and delicate, with green stems and leaves. The vase is positioned on the left side of the frame, and the flowers extend upwards and outwards, partially overlapping the title text.

MATT GLAZES

BY MILTON BRIDGE

A hand holding a brush over a white ceramic plate, with a jar of glaze and a plant in the background.

A selection of 12 bright shades with a matt finish.

Apply 2 -3 coats to earthenware bisque with a brush, allowing each coat to dry in between each layer. We recommend using a soft bristle brush for the perfect finish.

Available ready mixed in 250ml, 500ml or 1 litre.

Top Tip - Try combining matt glaze with gloss glaze to create a dramatic contrast.

The glaze is made from industry standard, high quality materials which are used by tableware and sanitaryware manufacturers.

No clay is contained in any of our glaze recipes meaning the glaze may appear more runny than other brands. Instead we use an optimal brushing medium which gives excellent adhesion of the glaze to the body.

The medium used extends the shelf life of the glaze, reduces settling and deposits as well as reducing crazing when fired.
